

Customer Story

Paul is Chairman of Ugo Foods Ltd, a 79-year old food company based in Hertfordshire. He is also an avid motorsport lover, a passion that began from a very young age. His father didn't care much for motorsport, so Paul just watched from the side-lines, dreaming of the day he would be old enough to race.

As soon as Paul could start racing, he got his first car and he has never looked back. He owns three cars and races around the world, a hobby that he enjoys with his son. His 1968 Chevron B8 is, by his admission, his favourite of the three cars.

In addition to being Chairman at Ugo Foods, the longest established fresh pasta and noodles company in the UK, Paul also owns his own car-building company.

“ I love my Turatello F35XL Living because I can turn it into whatever I want, it's fully equipped and well kitted out as standard ”

With his son and a team of engineers, Paul builds high-quality bespoke cars for his customers all over the world.

Paul is not new to enclosed trailers. Over the years, he has owned several trailers brands but went for Turatello's F35 Living because it was the best value for money on the market. Some benefits that he enumerates are:

Insulated Enclosure

for humidity controlled long term storage

Timeless Italian design with an innovative chassis for a more stable towing experience.

Overall, Paul finds his Turatello trailer very comfortable and easy to use. When we asked him what he loved most about his trailer, he said, "I can make it into whatever I want it to be!"

We are so glad that you love your F35 Living!
